A detention center is a special institution set up by the public security organs to detain criminal suspects who have been arrested or criminally detained in accordance with the law. The criminal suspect is detained before the criminal suspect is sentenced by the court. For criminals sentenced to fixed-term imprisonment, if the remaining sentence is less than three months before being handed over to execute the sentence, the detention center will execute the sentence on their behalf and will not be sent to the prison to serve their sentence.
